

Jeanne Black

September 10, 1922 - May 11, 2012

Jeanne is a fourth generation San Franciscan. She graduated from Washington High School where she was a cheerleader along with Lana Turner, the future movie star. After a year of junior college, she married, worked in an insurance office and became a war widow. She loves to cook and found her favorite work as a food and cooking demonstrator for Macy's in San Francisco. This work allowed flexible hours, so she continued after she married, while raising three daughters.

After 26 years, she divorced and married again. After 27 years, her third husband died a year ago. Jeanne lived in San Mateo for 27 years where she worked selling a variety of items, including family photographs.

Her hobbies have been sports and fitness, particularly swimming which she continues here at SRC. She has three grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Her favorite travels have been a cruise to Japan and a tour of Southern plantations. She felt San Francisco was too foggy but enjoys the sunshine in Saratoga!

Jeanne is now living in Assisted Living

Jeanne died May 11, 2012.
