

Don Loftus
August 17, 1921 to March 10, 2009

Don was born in Chicago where his father was a policeman who helped capture the famous criminal, Dillinger. Don attended Loyola U. where he played drums in a college band, and graduated from Northwestern U. with degrees in business and transportation. During WWII he was a medic in the Air Force for three years, serving in China-Burma-India. He worked for Pullman-Standard and then Western Pacific Railroad which merged with Union Pacific. He retired in 1982.