

Verna Carter died 6-24-18

Verna was born in in Oklahoma, the youngest of 10 children. When she was six, the family moved to Fresno where she finished school. She followed her older siblings to San Francisco where she worked for many years in a printing company and had her own consulting business.

She spent ten years living in Santa Monica, where she at one time took an evening course at UCLA in creative writing and enjoyed many talks with a young classmate, Arnold Schwarzenegger. She was surprised to see him on TV later when he became famous.

Verna particularly enjoys family reunions back in Oklahoma where her surviving siblings plus some of her many nieces and nephews gather every two years. She has one brother living nearby in Saratoga who alerted her to SRC.

Verna moved to Assisted Living and is now living in the Health Care Center.
